

LITERACY DETECTIVES!

HERE'S YOUR ASSIGNMENT FOR THE WEEK...

READING

Private I. Guana

Written by: Nina Laden

Illustrated by: Nina Laden

Hello Reading Detectives!

<https://www.storylineonline.net/books/private-i-guana/>

This week we're going to read a book called "Private I. Guana" by Nina Laden. This is another detective story about a missing chameleon. As you read, think about what happens in the beginning, middle, and end of the story. After you've read the story, retell it to someone in your house. Use your fingers: "First,... Then,... Finally,..." You can always "read" the book again to check yourself! Good luck and enjoy the story!

WRITING

Writers, last week, you wrote an opinion piece to persuade your teachers to try something new. This week, YOU get to be the teacher!! We want you to write a teaching book. Some ideas include a how-to book (jump rope, make a cake, etc.) or an all about book. For example, you could write about elephants or sharks or anything that you want to teach someone else about. Remember to put spaces between your words, make sure all your letters face the correct direction and put capital letters and punctuation where they belong. Don't forget to draw and label your pictures! Don't forget to send it to us!!

PHONICS

Word Detectives:

We know that when two letters come together to make a completely different sound, it is called a digraph. This week your assignment is to think about the digraphs SH (like in the word fish) and CH (like in the word cheese). Make a list of 5 words for each digraph. You might look around your house to see if you can find something that has one of these digraphs in its name. For example, a couch. Or maybe you notice some words spelled using these digraphs during your reading that you could list as well. Can you find even more? Detectives, are you ready? Go!!
